Hello all!

So, Brian at DCBID spoke to the REcylaLA folks and they have stated that the DCBID is exempt. So, we are assuming all BIDs are exempt. See discussion below. We just need to use an approved hauler (via the link below). We do not need to use one of the four franchise haulers.

After you've looked at this vendor list, let me know your thoughts. Do we think this solves our issue?

Rena

Good Morning,

See below, I am sure if they exempt the DCBID all BID's would be exempt. I would call Lorena just to be sure and to get it in writing for your respective BID.

Hi Brian,

As we discussed, the Downtown Business Center Improvement District is exempt from the provisions of the recycLA program, but because Commercial Waste Services is no longer a permitted hauler, you may not continue to contract them.

Below is the link to the list of permitted haulers -- it's divided into two sections -- one is waste haulers (trash); the other is haulers that primarily haul construction and demolition debris, or who are actually contractors that haul their own debris from their jobs. I think you'll find a good substitute in the section marked "Waste Haulers" (the first part of the list).

If you have any questions, please let me know. I'll keep in touch regarding some of the other issues we discussed.
